What is a cookie?

A cookie is a tiny data file stored on your computer, tablet or smartphone. It is essential to note that this file cannot contain malware or viruses.

What cookies do we use at PHHD Holding SA?

On our website <https://www.phhd.ch/>, we have chosen to use only essential cookies, also known as strictly necessary cookies.

Essential cookies are essential to ensure the smooth operation of our website, by enabling basic functions such as page navigation and access to secure areas. Without these cookies, the site cannot operate properly.

Without these necessary cookies, your user experience would be greatly impacted. For example, you would have to log back into your account every time a new web page loaded and answer the same questions over and over again. They are also important for the efficiency and security of our website.

How long are cookies stored on your computer?

Most of the cookies we use are session cookies, which means they are automatically deleted as soon as you log out or close your browser. However, some cookies remain on your device after the current session, until you manually delete them.

How do I delete cookies?

You can always delete or block all cookies completely by adjusting the browser settings on your computer, tablet or smartphone. The location of these settings varies according to the browser you use. By deleting cookies, you modify your consent.

Please note, however, that we use cookies that are strictly necessary for the proper operation of the site. If you block these cookies, you may not be able to use certain functions and services on the website.

In principle, to delete cookies, you need to go to your browser settings and then to privacy. To find out more, click on the link for your browser.
